The European Union Managers' Training Programme IV (MTP 4)

MTP 4 is a project financed by the European Union (EU). Its overall objective is to improve the economic performance of enterprises in Russia, Ukraine, Uzbekistan and Azerbaijan by offering management training for young professionals and top executives from these countries in companies throughout the EU. Participation in MTP 4 prepares participating managers to better meet the challenges of profound changes caused by transition to market economies in their home countries.

In January 2006 the fourth project phase MTP 4 has started. 809 candidates from the Russian Federation, Ukraine, Uzbekistan and Azerbaijan will have the opportunity to participate in the programme between 2006 and 2008.

Since the year 2000, about 2700 managers from Russia and other NIS countries have already been successfully trained in previous MTP phases.

Concept and target groups

MTP trainings comprise company internships and seminars on up-to-date management topics. They start with an introductory seminar.

Top executives are invited to participate in 4 week training courses in two different EU countries. They visit a number of selected companies and attend lectures on up-to-date management topics.

Junior and middle managers aged between 25 and 40 can participate in 8 to 12 week management training courses in the EU consisting of company internships and accompanying seminars designed to improve their managerial know-how in specific fields of interest.

For a small number of Russian and Ukrainian managers, the internship will take place in branches of EU companies in these two countries (Local MTP).

MTP trainings end with an Europa Seminar in a major European City.

Objectives

During their training in the EU, participating managers learn more about the implementation of modern managing methods and the importance of human resources development. They exchange experiences and expert knowledge with their colleagues in the host companies and they become acquainted with European corporate culture.

Furthermore, MTP trainees have the chance to improve their cross-cultural competencies and to build up a network of new business partners throughout the EU and the MTP participating countries. Up-to-date qualification of managers will positively influence the competitiveness of their home companies, especially if they are facing the challenges of restructuring, outsourcing and implementing change projects.

By accepting MTP trainees from Russia, Ukraine, Uzbekistan or Azerbaijan, EU companies are being offered the possibility to establish new business relationships in these countries. Through the trainees' expertise, regional know-how and network of contacts they gain first-hand insight into relevant NIS markets. By means of their country-specific and expert knowledge, MTP trainees can help to establish contacts with companies of interest in regions of the NIS.

MTP offers companies in Russia and Ukraine an additional enterprise development programme designed to support companies' performance and to improve management practices.

Subsidiaries of EU companies in Russia and Ukraine can participate in MTP by offering internships (Local MTP).
